Seen & Heard Around Murray

Mrs. Lena Wiley of Almo calls about a big tomato that she grew. This monster weighed in at one pound and 12 ounces. It measured 14 inches around one way and 13 inches the other. This was a Big Boy and Mrs. Wiley says that it is as pretty a tomato as she has ever seen.

Local schools will be in session four weeks from today.

Our sympathy to the Stout and Covington families on the death of Mrs. Stout.

T. C. Collie reminded us that those big red flowers at Oliver Cherry's house are Cannas. We had a mental block and could not remember what they were. We knew they were not Flax, but that was as close as we could get. Seems that the older we get, the more mental blocks we have.

The first football game this fall for Murray State is with East Michigan, here, on September 20.

Squirrels have already begun to work on this year's Acorn crop. The Iron Oak has Acorns for the first time and you can see the Squirrels way out on a limb pulling them off. They get a good foothold and sit there munching on them.

Found a long time acquaintance Saturday while pulling some weeds out of the Azaleas. An Ant Lion had his pit dug in some sandy soil waiting for his prey to fall in. What he does is this. He fashions a funnel shaped pit in sandy soil, then he gets in the bottom of the funnel with just his eyes sticking out. If an Ant or some other small insect happens by and falls into the funnel, he just sits there while the insect wears himself out trying to climb the steep walls. After so long a time, he emerges from his hiding place and grabs his luckless victim and has him for lunch.

A Dragon Fly speeds by full of confidence. He comes to a halt, hovering in the air near the bird bath, then turns on the after-burner and zips into the woods. He has two wings on each side.

Missouri Town Eerily Quiet After Shattering Explosions

By SYDNEY REIBSCHEID
NOEL, Mo. (UPI) — It was a resort town nestled beside a small lake in the shadow of the Ozark Mountains. Today the only visitors were National Guardsmen.

Besides the unusual quiet brought by the evacuation of nearly all the 1,000 residents, there were 200 damaged buildings, a 20-foot deep gorge and the guardsmen patrolling to prevent looting as mute evidence of two vicious, unexplained explosions Sunday.

Not only was the cause of the blasts unknown, even the exact circumstances surrounding them were the subject of controversy among investigators.

One thing was certain. The explosions left one person dead, 40 injured and Noel practically a ghost town.

A crater 20 feet deep and some 50 feet long marked the spot of the explosions.

Initial reports were that the larger blast was a huge propane tank at a storage depot of the Tri-State Gas Co., near the railroad tracks.

Roads Sealed Off

However, a spokesman for the Empire Gas Co., at Lebanon, parent firm of Tri-State, said "it was not our equipment which blew."

The highway and all other roads leading into Noel were sealed off by troopers who turned back thousands of cars of Sunday night sightseers.

Some state troopers at the scene said one or more small propane tanks aboard a truck exploded but that the main blast was on a railroad car, carrying ammonium perchlorate, a chemical used in the manufacture of munitions. The cargo was owned by the Defense Department and bound for a plant at either Marshall or Karnak, Tex.

Asst. Fire Chief Dick Easter said no propane "blew" although gas around valves or "blow holes" on the tanks caught fire.

He said a small explosion preceded the main blast, which occurred at 4:05 a.m. CDT just as the fire department arrived. He said firemen were so busy at the time, warning residents to flee to safety, that "no one really saw what happened."

William N. Deramus III, president of the Kansas City Southern Railway, said ammonium perchlorate is not explosive. But chemists said it would explode if heated to temperatures around 200 degrees.

Crew Spots Glow

While the train was stopped at Noel to pick up a brakeman, crew members spotted a glow apparently from a fire. Deramus theorized it spread to several cars of dehydrated alfalfa behind it. He said he believed a trackside warehouse containing ammonium nitrate, an explosive fertilizer, contributed to the blast, possibly touching off the main explosion. However, state troopers said the warehouse appeared to have been damaged by the explosion without contributing to the blast.

Crumpled walls of the warehouse lay on the ground and bags of fertilizer hung from the limbs of nearby trees, but sacks of the explosive material also remained inside the structure, apparently untouched.

A state trooper said five demolished boxcars in the 125 car train included one which "vanished" except for a few pieces of debris buried in the earth. An axle, apparently from this car, was found a quarter of a mile away. The wheel from a car ripped through the roof of a house several blocks from the track.

Mrs. Roxie Miller, 48, the only fatality, was struck in the chest by a metal shard which had been part of a window casing ripped out by the blast.

The Highway Patrol said 31 homes were destroyed, 58 others were heavily damaged, and 55 less badly damaged.

Eighty-eight businesses were damaged. One church was demolished and another heavily damaged. Only one business in the town, the State Bank of Noel, showed no exterior damage.

Second Box Of Moon Rocks Open For Inspection Today

By RICHARD W. HATCH
SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — Scientists hoped to get their first look today inside the second box of moon rocks brought back to earth by Apollo 11.

About 39 pounds of the moon was in the aluminum box that resembles a small suitcase. Geologists expected to find no surprises.

The first box of the precious moon material was opened July 26 and preliminary studies showed it contained igneous rock, apparently caused by volcanism; loose moon dust with a surprising abundance of tiny glass beads and a cunk of compacted dust.

Neil A. Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin E. Aldrin, the men who returned to earth the first pieces of the moon, faced another day of technical reports today.

Report On Systems

Their agenda called for detailed reports on the individual systems of "Eagle," the ship that landed Armstrong and Aldrin on the moon two weeks ago, and of Columbia, the command module that brought all three back home.

The debriefing was the first work session after a leisurely weekend in their 31-room quarantine suite. The three moon voyagers and the 1616 other men quarantined with them remained in "excellent health" through the weekend, according to a routine announcement.

The 21-day quarantine was scheduled to end next Monday.

Jesse Leroy Stewart, 49, a cook in the moon lab, Sunday conducted the first worship service held in the quarantine quarters. Stewart, a deacon in the nearby New Hope Baptist Church, read the 23rd Psalm from the Old Testament and preached a brief sermon.

He said he selected the scripture reading because it begins "The Lord is my shepherd..." "I think that was one way we could get it over to our astronauts that they accomplished a great deal, and it was done by God being our shepherd," Stewart said later.

Armstrong At Service

A spokesman said Armstrong represented the Apollo 11 crew at the service, and said "I enjoyed your sermon, deacon, thank you very much." Aldrin and Collins worked on their

Drug Raid Finds Jerky On Antenna

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — A police sergeant raided a television antenna Sunday night after a citizen reported seeing long strings of a dark-looking substance hanging from it.

Sgt. Russ Sanders, peering up at the antenna in the dim evening light, figured the strings might be marijuana or possibly peyote.

He quietly placed a ladder against the side of the house, climbed to the rooftop and tipped to the antenna.

Sanders quickly realized from the odor that he had raided a smelly — but lawful — rooftop beef jerky curing operation.

A Concise History of the Kentucky Department of Highways

Produced By
Office of Public Affairs
Kentucky Department of Highways
Frankfort, Kentucky 40601

After Kentucky became a state in 1792, among the problems facing the young territory was that of building a better system of roadways so that travel between the various communities and towns could be made more rapidly and with greater ease.

Many of the young state's laws were copied in full or in part from those existing in Virginia. In many instances the laws relating to roads also were patterned after those of Virginia. Some of these laws helped to establish commissions that were responsible for building new "wagon roads" between the larger towns of the state and the later commissions set up a system of paying for the construction and maintenance of the roads.

In 1836 the General Assembly created the "Board of Internal Improvement." Among its responsibilities was that of investigating Turnpike Companies that applied to operate in the state; examining the roads in which the state had invested funds and to make recommendations to the governor and the General Assembly.

By 1837 over 343 miles of macadam roads (rock and gravel) were built and 237 miles more were under contract.

On March 15, 1869, the "Board of Internal Improvement" was abolished. All the roads built from 1863 to 1912 were built by county-units and had no state help, interest or control.

By 1912 the automobile was beginning to come more and more into the picture. The days of "Old Dobbin" were numbered and the cry for "good roads" was being heard. "Good roads" organizations flourished in every town and hamlet. Many organizations began to put pressure on the elected officials and in time the "Department of Public Roads" was created by the legislature.

The total expenditures for the first year's operations was $10,191 and the staff consisted of nine people. The head of this new department was the Commissioner of Public Roads. He and his office were restricted to an advisory capacity to the various counties. He could help a county in making surveys and plans but he had no authority over construction or maintenance. With the approval of the governor the commissioner could employ engineers and clerks but the total salaries of all employees plus travel plus supplies, etc., could not exceed $25,000 per year.

From July 1, 1912, to November 1, 1913, the new department made plans for, surveys of, finished profiles, specifications and estimates on 61 miles of new road, made plans for 153 bridges and inspected 374 miles of road for improvements. By 1913 Kentucky had approximately 58,000 miles of road of which 10,636 miles were improved roads. Of this total 300 miles were operated by Turnpike Companies.

The counties raised road funds by a levy amounting to $1,933,000 and 185,000 free laborers, residing on the rural roads, worked 6 days during the year to build and maintain the roads. This was required by statute.

By 1914, with the increase of motor vehicles, the clamor for "good roads" was ever on the increase. The act of 1912 was proven inadequate and the General Assembly created a system of Public State Highways to connect each county seat with the county seat of any adjoining county on the most direct and practical route. To finance this new state road system a gasoline tax was levied and an auto license tax was instituted.

The counties, in order to share in this money, had to match the state funds. A formula was set up for the state and county matching funds. This formula was revised from time to time in order that poorer counties could share to a greater degree.

The 1914 legislature, believing that at some future date the Federal government would extend aid to the States for the purpose of Highway construction, passed a law that gave the Commissioner of Public Roads the authority to cooperate with the Federal authorities to the end that Kentucky might share in such aid. This was a wise move for as early as 1914 a Federal grant of $20,000 was secured for improvement of a post road in Montgomery County. At about the same time three senior Federal engineers were assigned to Kentucky. These engineers acted as division engineers for the state.

World War I canceled plans for an $85,000,000 appropriation to build rural post roads. The first Federal aid project began in 1919 in Carter County.

By 1920 the General Assembly, realizing that the state road construction could not be left in the hands of 120 fiscal courts and that power over the state's highway system should be centralized, created the State Highway Commission.

An auto tax of 60 cents per rated horse power was levied as was a tax of 1 cent per gallon on gasoline. Between 1920 and 1938 the legislature, with little or no concern for the fact that money was not available, added something over 17,000 miles of road to the so-called "Primary System."

Acts of 1924 and 1926 increased the power of the State Highway Commission. The Commissioners, of which there were four, had absolute control in all matters pertaining to construction, location, reconstruction and maintenance of all roads and bridges in the state system.

In 1932 a nine-man commission, one each from the nine districts, was appointed by the Governor. For some years there was no state Highway Engineer.

By 1936 the legislature had reorganized the department with a Highway Commissioner who had complete charge. There were Advisory Commissioners, one from each Congressional District, appointed by the governor. The Acts of 1936 divided the Highway Department into: Construction, Maintenance, Records, Equipment, Rural Highways and Highway Patrol.

At the 1938 session, the legislature declared all roads and highways now established to be a part of the primary system. The Highway Department was given the authority to determine what, when, and where improvements, maintenance, construction, and routes were to be built. The growth and development of the Kentucky road system has been one of turmoil and pain and yet, it has been enormous in the past 50 years. In a concise history of such a gigantic organization as the Kentucky Department of Highways is, it is impossible to tell the whole story.

Today Kentucky has one of the finest, most highly organized and efficient Departments of Highways in the nation. The original expenditure of two thousand pounds (approximately $5600) in 1794 has grown steadily over the years and now approaches $300 million annually. One of the world's finest systems of highways crisscrosses the Blue Grass state, with more constantly being built.

Each citizen and taxpayer should seek to know more about the "functions and operations" of the Kentucky Department of Highways. In doing so, each one should have a keener understanding of how the highway dollars are spent and just how much in travel pleasure each is receiving from this expenditure. Such information can always be secured from the Office of Public Affairs, Kentucky Department of Highways, Frankfort.

Gun Control Appears To Be Dead Issue

"It apparently takes the death of a beloved leader...."

By WILLIAM B. MEAD

WASHINGTON UPI — Gun control appears a dead issue in Congress this year and perhaps next, barring another dramatic assassination.

Ironically, the final blow may have been dealt by the National Violence Commission's proposal under which the government would confiscate about 90 per cent of the 24 million privately owned pistols in the United States.

"They've proved that the gun nuts were right," said one congressional source who worked on gun control for two years. "When this whole flap started, the immediate reaction from the gun lovers was, 'You louse, you're trying to get my gun.' And here it is."

There was little congressional impetus anyway. The Nixon administration, asked to testify on various gun control bills, told a Senate subcommittee this week it was against all proposals aimed at requiring registration of guns and licensing of their owners.

Moreover, the administration signaled its belief gun control required little attention. To testify for the Justice Department, it sent Donald E. Santarelli, an associate deputy attorney general. Santarelli's relatively low rank contrasted with gun control testimony by two attorneys general, Nicholas DeB. Katzenbach and Ramsey Clark, during the Johnson administration.

Last year Congress passed its first significant gun legislation since the gangster era, a bill banning most interstate gun sales and all interstate mail order ammunition sales. The congressional fire had been fed by public outcry from the assassinations of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. After Kennedy's death, President Lyndon B. Johnson created the commission on violence. Its chairman is Milton S. Eisenhower.

er, brother of the late president. This year, according to FBI statistics, violent crime is increasing, with murder up 7 per cent and armed robbery up 27 per cent. But there is no fresh blood from a famous figure, a fact even gun control crusaders like Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., recognized as a legislative liability.

"No admonition will create a groundswell of public support," Dodd said. "It apparently takes the death of a beloved leader to temporarily do that."

Who should pay for dates?

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "who should pay on dates?" You said that if the gentleman invites the lady, HE should pay. This sounds ducky on the face of it, but what other choice has he? She sure as heck is not about to ask HIM out! She has a good thing going. He's trapped and she knows it.

Now, hear me out. This caste system might have had some validity years ago, but things are different now, and I see no reason why a man should have to shoulder the whole cost when the broad he's out with is earning as much—if not more than he is.

Now, what I want from you, Dear Abby, is one good reason why the man should have to submit to this form of cultural blackmail? Actually, if my fellow men are too stupid to realize that they are being taken, then the deserve to be, and I wish you girls the best of luck. As for me, I am thru being used!

DEAR HAD IT: No man has to submit to any form of blackmail. He has the right to ask the lady to pick up the tab for herself, or for both of them. She may even do it, but it is also her right to refuse.

DEAR ABBY: I think I can help that girl who said policemen "turn her on," and she wanted to know how to meet one. Policemen "turn me on," too, and I can give her some tips from my own experience.

1. Get a job as a waitress. Policemen always stop in diners for coffee or a quick bite. This is a perfect place to start a conversation with a policeman, and if he is interested in you, you'll end up dating him.

2. Get a ticket for over-parking or letting the meter run out, not for speeding. A speeding ticket is expensive, counts against your driving record, and besides, you have to go before the judge and you don't end up meeting the cops anyway. A ticket for over-parking is only $1.00, and you get to go down to the police station to pay it. Here is where you will meet a lot of cops.

3. Ride around. When a police car passes you, be sure to look intently at the cops in it. If they smile, smile back. Chances are they will find something to say to you. I do it all the time and I've never been disappointed.

"LIKES COPS" IN WAYNE, N. J.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if those people who are all for birth control and abortion have ever stopped to consider that every year thousands of childless couples have been able to adopt babies only because they were illegitimate.

Unwed mothers actually serve a very useful purpose in society, don't they?

AGAINST BIRTH CONTROL AND ABORTION

DEAR AGAINST: It's true that because of illegitimacy, many couples have been able to become parents thru adoption. But to say that "the unwed mother serves a useful purpose in society" is like comparing illegitimacy to a heart transplant. It's wonderful for the recipient, but serves no useful purpose for the donor.

Miss Sherry Lynn Lovett And Hollis Lee Wilkins United In Marriage

In a candlelight ceremony on Thursday evening July 3, at 8:00 o'clock Miss Sherry Lynn Lovett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis Lovett of Benton Route 5, and Hollis Lee Wilkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Wilkins of Benton Route 4 were united in marriage at the Fairdealing Church of Christ. Brother Terry Walter, minister, performed the double ring ceremony.

A program of nuptial music was presented preceding and during the ceremony by Miss Nora Morgan, cousin of the bride.

The wedding vows were pledged before a background of ferns and beauty baskets of white gladioli, mums and pom-poms. Candelabras were arranged to form an arch to complete the setting. White satin bows marked the family pews. Preceding the ceremony the tapers were lighted by Kerry Lovett, brother of the bride and Phil Norwood, cousin of the bride.

The bride given in marriage by her father, was attired in a formal length gown of ivory silk faced peau de sole. The empire waist silhouette was accented on the high mandarin collar and sleeves with applied motifs of Alencon lace and seed pearls. Her A-silhouette skirt was appliqued with lace and beading down the front. The detachable chapel train of silk faced peau de sole accented around the edge with lace motifs and seed pearls. The brides elbow-length veil-of-imported illusion was designed with bouffant tiers and attached to a head dress of silk petals outlined in pearls. Her colonial bouquet was fashioned of mums and daisies tied with tulle and streamers tied in love knots.

Miss Gail Norwood, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. The bridesmaid was Mrs. Karen Gray. The attendants wore formal gowns of daffodil yellow crepe, fashioned with an empire bodice, sleeveless with A-line skirt. The headress, was of matching yellow silk flowers with shoulder length illusion. They carried large yellow mums tied with moss green streamers.

The flower girl, Miss Tammy Wilkins, cousin of the groom wore a dress styled in the fashion of the attendants. In her hair she wore a bandeau of yellow flowers. She carried a white basket of red rose petals. The ringbearer was Jeffery Nimmo nephew of the groom. Attending Mr. Wilkins as best man was his cousin, Larry Faircloth. The groomsmen was Chad Gray.

Mrs. Lovett chose for her daughters wedding a beige double knit dress with matching accessories. She also wore a corsage of white carnations. Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the recreation room of the ministers home. Serving at the brides table were Miss Dinah Clayton, Miss Eva Roberts, Miss Cindy Norwood, and Miss Kay Downing. Miss Carol Wilkins, sister of the groom kept the guest register. Rice bags of white net were presented to the guests by Lydia Nimmo.

Following the reception the couple left for a short wedding trip. For traveling the bride wore a blue knit dress. Her corsage was taken from her bridal bouquet. The couple is now at home on Benton Route 4.

When new canes of black or purple raspberries have reached a height of about two feet, summer pruning — sometimes called summer pinching — can be done.

Pruning can be done by taking off the growing tip of the main cane when the early summer growth of that cane has reached the desired height. No definite date can be given for this operation, because raspberry cane growth varies under different soils and weather conditions.

When the tip has been removed from the main cane, the cane will make no further upright growth. Lateral branch growth will be stimulated, however.

The summer pinching applies only to black and purple raspberries. Red raspberry plants do not possess the ability to form lateral branches. — Mrs. Maxine Griffin.

Many people think they know how to hold the knife and fork when cutting food but are mistaken on the proper method. Here is the proper method. Check yourself! Hold the knife in the right hand, the fork in the left, tines down, holding the handle firmly and naturally. The end of the handle rests in the palm of the hand and is never seen, the index finger extending along the handle to steady and guide the knife or fork. The knife blade should NOT be stuck between the tines of the fork! Cut just enough meat or other food for one or two bites at a time. — Pat Everett.

TEEN-AGERS — How to reduce conflicts is a big problem of today. Teen-agers need a loose rein, but parents should limit its length. Teen-agers should not be given more freedom than they are able to handle.

Parents and young people should agree on some of the important issues of this age. How well this is accomplished depends on the love, respect and understanding between parents and teen-agers. A family should choose goals in life that are important to them. There is a certain amount of hostility in this age and parents should decide which goals are the most valuable, such as honesty or neatness. It is better for youth to rebel against less important goals than ones the parents hold most important.

However, our society of today it seems is putting priority on materialism and the youth of today are rebelling against "things". Maybe parents need to reevaluate their goals and ideals and see which is worthwhile. Youngsters are lost without adult models to follow. What kind of models have we been to this generation of youth? — Miss Irma Hamilton.

A substantial bank account is not the only indicator of financial worth. One of the best measuring sticks is your net worth statement.

To find your net worth, simply add up what you own and subtract what you owe. The results may give you the satisfaction of seeing some real financial progress or it may indicate you'd better tighten your purse strings. — Mrs. Barletta Wraether.

Are you buying silverware as a new bride, or for the new bride? If so, take your time and choose a piece that will give lasting pleasure to the user. If you are buying flatware, which includes knives, forks, spoons, and serving pieces, consider these pointers: 1. Does it balance comfortably in the hand? 2. Are the fork tines smooth and strong? 3. Are the spoon and fork shanks sturdy enough? 4. Are the knife blades securely attached to the handles, or do they look as though they might loosen with use? — Mrs. Mildred W. Potts.

Pack with convenience in mind so you can be a carefree, fresh and untraveled traveler. Good packing starts with planning ahead. Visualize every outfit, from underclothing to shoes and eliminate anything you can't wear more than once. A minimum of three sets of underwear is a good guide to follow — one to wear, one to wash, and one to spare. To provide a greater variety in your wardrobe, choose a basic color scheme of no-wrinkle garments. — Mrs. Catherine C. Thompson.

Saving Graces Practiced By Scouts

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

SAY "GIRL SCOUTS" and you think of campfires and cookies. Add another "C" for Conservation because these young Americans, some 3,160,000 of them, are helping to save our country's great natural resources.

"I give my pledge as an American to save and faithfully to defend from waste the natural resources of my country—its soil and minerals, its forests, water and wildlife," goes the Girl Scout conservation pledge.

"It is a pledge that's taken seriously at a time in our history when conservation should be everyone's business for urban development is eating up land and pollution is threatening wild life. Girl Scouts all over the country are attuned to these problems and are working to overcome them.

In Rhode Island where more and more trees have been cut down and marsh reeds destroyed, wood ducks have been finding it hard to set up housekeeping. Girl Scouts are helping them, building houses for the ducks, placing them in likely places for nests to be located.

Jersey City scouts, lead by Mrs. Hilda Feith, are fighting another battle. They have been trying to help conservationist leaders establish a wild life refuge in the East Hackensack Meadows, scheduled for development and industrialization but with room for a bird sanctuary and for muskrats and other small animals, too. Once the natural refuge of a vast number of animals, including beaver, the Meadows have been laid waste by the misuse of the area by man.

In Iowa, Junior Troop 160 has placed 20 bird houses along a nature trail in an effort to entice bluebirds back to Muscatine.

Brownie Troop 1753 in Edmonds, Washington, spent three weekends clearing the ocean beach of bottles, tin cans and other junk. It's the same in the High Sierra, where scouts on horseback patrol parks picking up debris left by homo sapiens.

All over the country, Girl Scouts are safeguarding nature. They're growing roses where there was rubbish, putting in plants with berries, birds can eat, helping prevent soil erosion by building switchback trails across steep slopes of widely used areas. They fan out and step carefully when hiking through untrampled fields. They cover up roots of trees that have been exposed by soil erosion. They use infinite precaution in building and extinguishing campfires. They are working to keep America beautiful and protect its natural assets. And they are setting an example their elders might well follow.

SCOUTS clean up after a weekend in the woods near Bear Mountain, N.Y. Conservation training teaches them to restore a site to natural litter-free state before they leave it.

Lose 10 Lbs. In 10 Days on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (Special)—This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S.

Because this diet really works. We have testimonials reporting on its success. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. No weight loss in the first four days but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 14 pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Revised and enlarged, this diet lets you stuff yourself with formerly "forbidden" foods, such as steaks trimmed with fat, roast or fried chicken, gravies, mayonnaise lobster swimming in butter, bacon fat sausages and scrambled eggs and still lose weight. The secret behind this "quick weight loss" diet is simple. Fat does not form fat. And the grapefruit juice in this diet acts as a catalyst (the "trigger"), to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted foods listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. A copy of this startling successful diet can be obtained by sending $2 to

Stewart said he planned to bake a cake from "scratch" for Armstrong's 39th birthday Tuesday. He said most of the fare in the quarantine quarters is frozen or prepared from mixes but "if we used a cake mix it would be someone else's cake." He said the cake would have candles.

Technicians had to open the second rock box in a chamber filled with nitrogen because the vacuum chamber where the first box was opened was contaminated last week when a pressure glove burst.

Nitrogen is an inert gas. Dr. Wilmot N. Hess, chief scientist at the Lunar Receiving Laboratory, said "We'd rather not" open the box anywhere but in a vacuum. But he said he was confident the samples would not be damaged.

He said the disadvantage of using nitrogen instead of a vacuum was outweighed by the need to distribute the rocks to scientists before they lose any of the lunar characteristics.

ALMANAC

by United Press International
Today is Monday, Aug. 4, the 216th day of 1969 with 149 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1735, "freedom of the press" was established when John Zenger, publisher of a New York City newspaper, was acquitted on libel charges.

In 1914, Britain declared war on Germany as America issued a proclamation of neutrality.

In 1955, Red China released 11 Air Force fliers captured in the Korean war and held captive more than two and one-half years.

In 1967, America ended its airlift to the strife torn Congo.

A thought for the day: "Oh, it's nice to get up in the morning, but it's nicer to stay in bed."

Television

Notes

NEW YORK (UPI) —

NBC's two-hour musical special, "Hans Brinker or the Silver Skates," scheduled for the coming season, will have noted actor Cyril Ritchard in the role of the innkeeper.

From one "daughter" to three is the fate of John Forsythe, star of the new "To Rome with Love" series which will be on CBS next season in the 7:30-8 p.m. spot Sundays. In the long-run "Bachelor Father" series, Forsythe had a teen-aged niece on his hands. In the new show, he plays a widowed American college professor living in Rome with his three daughters, video-aged at 16, nine and six years. The theater's very funny Kay Medford plays the professor's older sister.

NBC will present its schedule for the new season in the week of Sept. 14-20. There will be seven new programs introduced in that period.

There may be quite a rating race in the 7:30-8:30 p.m. Saturday slot in the fall. The solidly established Jackie Gleason program on CBS, which has been going in for a lot of variety programs lately, should have some solid competition in the guest star field through the return to weekly duty by singer Andy Williams on the NBC network. The logical Gleason riposte is to return to a heavy schedule of "The Honey-mooners" shows. Which would make most people happy.

Johnny Carson has a new NBC contract that obligates him to the "Tonight" program for a period "into the 1970's." At of course, a token pay rise of a few thousand a week. And probably a few more weeks off. Carson took over the program in October, 1962.

LAY THAT PISTOL DOWN

George D. Newton Jr., firearms specialist for the National Commission on Violence, is shown before the Senate Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee in Washington, when he said the government should confiscate 90 per cent of the pistols owned in the U.S. He said the government should "allow all persons except a small group of prohibited persons" to own rifles and shotguns.

Sympathy For Ted, But . . .

NEW YORK, Aug. 3. — (UPI) — Most Americans take a "generous and forgiving view" of Senator Edward M. Kennedy's car accident but many are unsatisfied with his explanation of how it occurred and his behavior afterward, according to a poll published Sunday.

The poll commissioned by Time magazine from the Louis Harris organization, indicates "a high degree of skepticism about Kennedy's explanation of the accident and his behavior afterward, and about the incident's bearing on his presidential aptitude," Time said.

The poll questioned Americans on their reaction to the accident the night of July 18 on Chappaquiddick Island, Mass., in which Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, a former secretary to Senator Robert F. Kennedy, was killed. Kennedy failed to report the accident for about nine hours and has pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident.

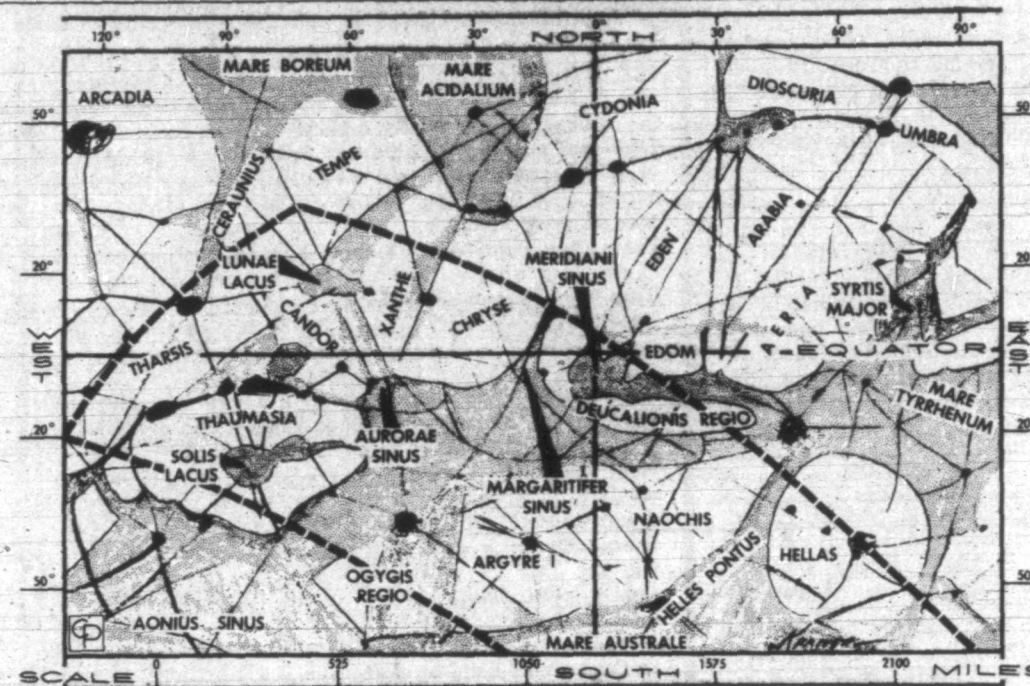

The results included: 68 per cent of those interviewed believe it is unfair to criticize Kennedy's reaction to the accident "because the same thing could have happened to anyone."

A plurality of 44 per cent to 36 per cent think "that Kennedy has failed to tell the real truth."

A majority of 51 per cent to 31 per cent "agrees that there still has been no adequate explanation of what he was doing at the party or with the girl who was killed."

40 per cent agreed that Kennedy "panicked in a crisis and showed that he could not be given high public trust such as being president; 15 per cent were not sure; 45 per cent disagreed with the judgment."

Republicans, meanwhile were reported seeking a candidate to oppose Kennedy next year for his Senate seat. GOP leaders generally concede their man will lose but hope they can force the crowd-pleasing Massachusetts Democrat to stick close to his home state and away from the presidential campaign trail, thus depriving the Democrats of a valuable campaigner.
